What it Costs to Furnish a House from Cellar to Garret

John Wanamaker
New York

(Y1) 75-

PEOPLE are constantly coming to Wanamaker's to buy the various furnishings for new homes, with practically no knowledge of what the home requires, and with nothing beyond the merest guess-work to direct them how to spend the money that they can appropriate to the furnishings.

Of course, when people of means are furnishing a home, they can select such articles as they like, without reference to the cost; but when young married people are setting out to furnish a new home they usually have a certain amount of money which they can apply to the furnishing, and in many cases they are absolutely limited to this appropriation.

It is the object of this book to illustrate exactly what can be done in the way of furnishing an entire house, in consistent style throughout, for a given amount of money. If you have an opportunity to buy certain things at some special offering, by glancing at the list under the heading of the amount of money which you have to spend you will know what amount you can consistently spend for that particular article, and when your house is furnished you will not discover that your china closet is much too handsome to harmonize with your sideboard, or that your parlor has been furnished so extravagantly that you have to economize more than you would like on the furnishing of your library or bedrooms.

New housekeepers will find it a marvellous help when buying the various furnishings to come to Wanamaker's with this book in their hands, and check off the various articles required as they buy them; and when they are through with the list they will know that all of the things that are absolutely essential in the way of furniture, carpets, upholstery and outfittings have been provided. And if the prices of the various articles are followed approximately, even though not exactly, they can be perfectly satisfied that according to the best expert knowledge their houses will be consistently furnished throughout.

Of course, we have not tried to supply everything possible in the houses illustrated — too large an element of personal taste and individual means would enter such an attempt. Neither have we limited ourselves to the barest household necessities. We have endeavored to fit each house with those things which, it seemed to us, a house of its kind must have in order to be well appointed.

In some places we have suggested articles in keeping, but easily dispensable. In such cases we have marked the items in parentheses, and have not included them in the total cost. Lamps in suburban houses that may or may not have gas supplies have been treated in the same way.

Most of the houses shown in the plans are such as may be found in the suburbs, the country, or smaller cities. Metropolitan houses would differ from them only in the absence of porch furnishings, some kitchen and laundry utensils, and small items that will readily suggest themselves. They would practically be identical with the large apartments described.

The book is in no sense a catalogue of the housefurnishing stocks in the Wanamaker Store. But it is meant to show not only that rooms, apartments and houses can be furnished here in fullest detail, in best taste and at lowest prices, but, further, that every separate household article, at prices similar to those indicated, can be found here at all times. We are pre-eminently equipped to fill the household needs of which we have made these pages suggestive.

The prices are, of course, approximate and subject to natural trade fluctuations.

We are always ready to give estimates on housefurnishings, carpets or hangings. Original designs for corners, draperies and decorations will be submitted with estimates, when desired.

Most of the plans in this book are published by courtesy of D. S. Hopkins, Architect, of Grand Rapids, Mich., an authority on modern house-building. They are reproduced from Books Six and Seven of his series of pamphlets, and are here indexed by the numbers he uses to distinguish them. For the plans marked Keith Nos. 692, 695, 698 and 186, acknowledgment is due to Keith's Magazine for October, 1902, The Keith Publishing Company, Minneapolis, Minn. The other plans come from varied sources, credit in each case being given.
